

Residential Services Program

Here at Woodfords we understand that people need more than just a place to live, they need a place to call home, natural supports, and great community.

Woodfords' Residential Services Program offers adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities the opportunity to live in a supportive home setting staffed by Direct Support Professionals (DSPs) in York and Cumberland Counties.

Woodfords understands that people need more than just a place to live – they need a place to feel supported and call home. Woodfords' residential consumers typically live with one or two roommates. Staff work with the consumers, their families, and other service providers to promote independence and community inclusion. The continued participation of family and friends in the lives of consumers is an important part of residential placement outside of the home.

Adults with intellectual or developmental disabilities who qualify for Section 21 services through the Maine Department of Health and Human Services are eligible for these services based on program availability.
